

Intermediate - Advanced

December 2012 Dependent Prepositions

Complete the sentences with prepositions.

Example: I am really interested in classical music.

1. Her ninety-year-old mother is totally dependent her.
2. I am a little anxious the speech I am going to give.
3. In your line of business you are more liable depression.
4. You can't rely the trains. They are not usually punctual.
5. The court ruled that you are not liable your husband's debts.
6. It has been predicted that our economy is heading disaster.
7. The plans are still discussion.
8. They didn't agree our proposal.
9. Sorry, I don't quite agree you.
10. His parents congratulated him his exam results.
11. She applied a job and is now waiting for a reply.
12. What I have just said does not apply you all.
13. You need to refrain criticising your boss all the time.
14. The man vehemently insists his innocence.
15. Scientists have succeeded finding a cure for the disease.
16. The search has provided the authorities important clues.
17. John is really good playing tennis.
18. We need to take other factors consideration before making a decision.
19. I wish more people would show concern the environment.
20. Writing in a hurry makes us more prone mistakes.

Intermediate - Advanced

December 2012 Dependent Prepositions

Complete the sentences with prepositions.

Example: I am really interested in classical music.

1. Her ninety-year-old mother is totally dependent on her.
2. I am a little anxious about the speech I am going to give.
3. In your line of business you are more liable to depression.
4. You can't rely on the trains. They are not usually punctual.
5. The court ruled that you are not liable for your husband's debts.
6. It has been predicted that our economy is heading for disaster.
7. The plans are still under discussion.
8. They didn't agree to our proposal.
9. Sorry, I don't quite agree with you.
10. His parents congratulated him on his exam results.
11. She applied for a job and is now waiting for a reply.
12. What I have just said does not apply to you all.
13. You need to refrain from criticising your boss all the time.
14. The man vehemently insists on his innocence.
15. Scientists have succeeded in finding a cure for the disease.
16. The search has provided the authorities with important clues.
17. John is really good at playing tennis.
18. We need to take other factors into consideration before making a decision.
19. I wish more people would show concern for the environment.
20. Writing in a hurry makes us more prone to mistakes.